

Minorin was glaring over at Mary as the group had just accepted this inexperienced White Mage to join them instead of herself. She clenched her fists together, her tail standing straight up and even let out a little bit of a hiss towards both the group leader, as well as Mary.

“So you pick her, this inexperienced runt instead of me, a White Mage who has been through a lot and is definitely a LOT stronger? Actually, I know how we should settle this!”

She said this with a bit of a smirk as she looked back over to Mary again. Pointing at her.

“I challenge you to a duel for the group spot. Only you versus me, the one who wins gets the spot. Isn’t this an agreeable way to do it?”

Mary of course seemed a bit uncertain and unsettled about this, she knew that Minorin was stronger than her, though as the group leader and the rest of the group seemed to accept this sort of condition she had to accept the challenge. With a nod she had her hand grabbed by Minorin to be dragged off to a proper place where they could do their duel, since doing so in the middle of Ul’dah in clear view was not such a good thing, the guards might stop them after all.

“Uwah...” Mary let out a small cry as she stumbled a little bit at first when pulled along by Minorin, she made sure they were both out of view, although in an area that people often used for duels and brawls to settle matters. Minorin smirked as she shoved Mary a bit away and pulled out her staff in preparation, in which Mary did the same thing thinking this was going to be a proper duel.

“Alright. 1...2...3 and so it begins!” Minorin waves her staff around, having a clear green glow coming from it and surrounding her before she tossed her spell at Mary. “Mini.” She exclaimed as the green glow flew towards Mary and hit her point blank, knocking her backwards and taking effect immediately. She dwindled down in size to a few mere inches now.

Mary was disoriented from the whole ordeal, her head spinning as the only thing she could see was the ground being much closer than before, before it started shaking as Minorin walked closer to her. Dressed in the usual White Mage garb, although she had changed to a more Hingan tabi and geta style instead of the usual boots worn by White Mages. One last thing landed right in front of Mary having her snap back to her senses. Her gaze slowly moving upwards and up under Minorin’s dress.

“I think I am going to win this duel.” Minorin’s voice boomed from above, moving her foot to allow her geta sandals to be kicked off she stomped down on top of the poor little Mary. She only had a second’s chance to cry out before the sole of the tabi sock clad foot crashed on top of her and crushed her in between the fabric and the ground below.

Minorin once more raised her feet to see the crushed body of Mary underneath, although she figured this had ended up being way too easy in terms of a duel. So she decided to use Raise to revive the poor little Mary, still tiny of course as Minorin’s foot kept looming above her tiny form.

“Oh, seems you are back. Ah wait I did that...Ehehehehe.” She laughed above her in a kind of sinister way as she once more placed her foot on top of her and started grinding that tiny form of hers into the ground, smearing and crushing her once more without any sort of remorse for doing this. She was literally crushing her competition in this duel. She even Raised her again.

The second time had been worse for Mary however, being slowly crushed between the white tabi sock fabric and the ground meant she had to endure the pain, crying out and begging for her life without Minorin seeming to give a single care about this. After the second revival she tried to squash her by using her toes only, though she figured taking off her tabi sock was going to make such a thing much easier. Wiggling her toes above Mary for a few moments before she started poking her with her big toe.

The immense weight of the toe came crashing down on top of the poor tiny Mary. She was pressed down into the ground in a painful manner, she even tried to crawl away but Minorin was not letting her get away at all. Eventually placing her bare foot on top of her instead, although she was not adding pleasure just yet either, waiting for that little one underneath her foot to start begging once more. Which happened as expected.

“W-Why are you doing this?” Her tiny squeaks, and even a couple of low meows could be heard coming from underneath the sole. “I thought we were going to have a proper duel...You are terrible!” Mary tried yelling up to her. “I’ll make sure I get my revenge.” The tiny Mary stuck underneath the foot was threatening the giant cat stepping on her, not a good move at all on Mary’s side.

“Psht...Revenge on me? I think you’ll be lucky if I even bother Raising you next time I kill you. In fact, let’s see if I will.” With a giggle from above she added more proper pressure on top of Mary just like before, easily, but slowly crushing that tiny form of her into nothing but a squishy pulp of blood and guts. Though as she raised her foot she actually did Raise her, just so she could stomp on her again, aiming for her legs only this time though.

Mary could be heard crying and shrieking from below as Minorin continued torturing her by crushing her, Raising her, healing her back to full health then crush her once more. Minorin taking her time doing this as well at points, where she stepped on her more normally so Mary was only hurt, before she squatted down above her in a looming fashion. “How much longer do you think you can hold out? I bet you remember the feeling every time I crush and Raise you, right?”

Minorin stood back up to her full height once more, raising her foot she stomped her heel on top of Mary one last time before deciding she had been doing this for long enough now that the group would believe that they had a proper duel. Smearing the remains of Mary against the ground before using Raise again. This time however she reached down to pick her up instead.

“I think I will let you join the group after all, except the rest of the group will have nooo idea you are there at all.” Minorin said with a light giggle once more. Picking up her tabi sock she dropped Mary into it before putting it back on, she made sure Mary was properly smothered between the soft fabric and her flesh before placing her foot back into the geta sandal. Which means that Mary was going to feel every crushing footfall Minorin was doing until being let back out.

“I guess I win this duel. Time go to join the group before they leave.” Waving a hand to herself she walked out from the duel area, every time she took a step Mary could feel herself being crushed, though Minorin made sure that she was lasting longer this time. She was also just walking normally now which meant she was not adding unnecessary pressure on top of Mary. A couple of Cures here and there made sure Mary did not die...At least not yet.

“The inexperienced White Mage lost the duel, she ran off crying after I wiped the floor with her.” Minorin stated to the group as she returned to them. They seemed to bicker a little between themselves for a couple of moments before accepting this result and inviting Minorin to join their group.

“Let’s go already!” The small female Au Ra Ninja exclaimed, seeming quite impatient due to having had waited for their healer due to a quarrel. “We’ve wasted enough time with this now!” She continued and huffed, turning around she stomped away.

Minorin shrugged as she decided to imitate the way the Au Ra was acting, though of course for completely other reasons than she was doing it. Trying to hide her smirk as she raised her foot and stomped after the Au Ra, with the rest of the group following behind her. Mary’s squeals and shrieks of pain and begging completely unheard and muffled through the flesh and fabric as she was continuously crushed and squashed with every stomp. Minorin sneakily Curing and Raising Mary after every stomp to make sure she lasted for the whole adventure.