

Aruruu's Curiosity

Aruruu opened her eyes after having passed out in the middle of the forest earlier in the day. Having a slight headache she sat up, a hand on her head stroking it a little bit just to try and get rid of the pain. She was a bit dizzy, resulting in the young girl not taking notice of the strange things that seemed to have happened while she was out of it. The last thing she remembers is that she was dashing through the forest and tripped over something.

Though as she finally took a proper glance around she noticed that everything was different, especially taking into consideration that the trees used to be towering above her small cute form before, though right now she was the one towering over the trees, and this was while she was sitting down. Luckily for her the clothes seemed to have grown with her though.

Shifting her position a little bit she tried to get a glance of what she had tripped over before, her eyes going rather wide when she took notice of what it was. She had tripped over one of the altars in the forest, this one seeming to belong to some sort of god that really wanted revenge, though she was a little confused about the way the revenge had been done considering how she had been made into a giantess.

She tried her best to fix the altar, picking up the rocks gently between two of her giant fingers and placing them on top of each other, hoping that doing this would result in her returning back to her normal size. However even after fixing the altar she was still the same giant size. Whining a little bit she got back up to her feet now, running towards the castle in the hopes of her sister being able to help her out with this thing instead.

Every footfall of the giant sized Aruruu made the ground tremble, with her current size it was amazing how she had been able to fix the altar at all, every now and then she even completely destroyed the trees around where her foot landed.

The people in the castle could feel the earthquake like thuds of the giantess coming closer and closer, Eruruu running out of the main part to see what was going on, the rhythm of the earthquakes seemed a bit odd for this to be something completely natural. The soldiers looked around, holding onto their spears and waiting for whatever it was, considering what had happened the past few years with the monsters and demon gods during the war between the lands they had to expect everything.

Eruruu now being the deputy empress of the land after Hakuro went off to one of their neighbors to form proper diplomatic bonds with their former enemies tried her best to keep the calm in the soldiers around her, and of course the villagers that came running up towards the castle to seek refuge and safety with the army.

Aruruu soon came into view however, and shocked most of the people there, Eruruu looked up and pointed. "W-Wait, that is my little sister. What in the world have happened?" She yelled out, of course knowing that the giantess was way too far away to actually hear her yet, and of course too big as well. Aruruu did not seem to be paying too much attention to where she placed her feet now as she ran through the village.

A poor family crushed underneath the foot of the innocent little girl that just wanted to get back to her sister after this unfortunate incident. Although it seemed that every time something evil happened on accident, Aruruu got the feeling that she had to do more of it on purpose. By the time she got to the castle entrance she fell to her knees with a thundering sound. Her cheeks a little bit red as she reached out and grabbed some of the guards standing there.

"Apples?" It seemed she confused the soldiers with apples, considering their red armor, although they had a completely different shape than apples of course. She opened her mouth up widely and started moving her hand with the soldiers towards it. "Aaah..." Her tongue rolling out now as she took a bit out of them, removing half of their bodies with ease, before throwing the other half inside.

She did end up making a rather disgusted face though, sticking out her tongue and spitting onto the ground, the giant glob splattering across a couple of other soldiers there, mixed with the red of blood and guts from the soldiers that had been chewed to death.

"Rotten apples..." She said now as she knocked down the gate and walls around the entrance of the castle, her hands moving around as she tried to search for more apples, or at least some sort of food that did not taste completely rotten. Though with these feelings came other feelings, her cheeks flushing up once more and she could be seen shivering and grinding her thighs together a little bit.

Falling down on her stomach, a couple of poor soldiers crushed underneath her small breasts and that cute flat stomach of hers, staining her white kimono-like clothing with their blood as well. Her giant face hovering in front of her sister now with a big smile. "Eruruu!" She said happily, her voice booming around the tiny ears of her sister and the soldiers around her, and considering they have animal ears they are even extra sensitive.

Eruruu was too busy covering her ears now after Aruruu had spoken to take notice of the hand coming for her, she let out a cute squeak when she was grabbed and Aruruu turned around to lay down on her back instead now, her legs still grinding together now as she tried to open up her clothing a little bit. "S-Sister... Help me with this feeling." She shivered more now as she started lowering her sister down, her panties were in slight view for her and it seemed this is the place the younger girl wanted some help.

The other hand pulled the waistband on the panties up just a tad before she gently forced her older sister inside of them now. Eruruu coughing from the scent of her younger sister's pussy this close to her, especially since it seemed to be pretty aroused already. Aruruu's cheeks burning bright red and she was even panting a little already. Because of who she was the soldiers did not dare to touch or hurt her, keeping away so no one else ended up accidentally crushed underneath the giantess who did not seem to know what she was doing for the most part. Acting on instinct of just accidents.

Eruruu wiggled around inside of the panties now, she pushed her hands around against the fabric as she kept sliding down due to the movements of her sister, it did not take long before she was properly trapped between the fabric and the giant slit of Aruruu. The scent being even more overwhelming in this part of the panties, and with her tiny size compared to her sister she slipped inside almost immediately.

It seemed Aruruu wanted to explore more about herself, the sexual parts of it at least, and she wanted her sister to help her out from the inside. Eruruu was not sure how she could help with her current size compared to her.